

MILWAUKEE EDUCATION PARTNERSHIP (MEP) MONTHLY REPORT

April 2017

- Meetings and conversations were held between the Milwaukee Education Partnership (MEP) Executive Director, Gerard Randall, and various individuals within and outside of the partnership regarding education legislation, grants, partnerships, various initiatives and projects, updates, MEP administrative business and more.
- Mr. Randall met with the new President/CEO of the Bradley Foundation, Richard Graber, and shared information with him about the work of the MEP.
- Dr. Jeffrey Senese, Provost & Vice President for Academic Affairs at Stritch; Mr. Himanshu Parikh, Interim Chief of Human Resources at Milwaukee Public Schools (MPS); and Mr. Randall met to discuss Project Metro and ideas to support the enhancement of the program and greater participant outcomes.
- Mr. Randall had meetings with County Executive Chris Abele's staff concerning the MEP's enhancement of the Milwaukee youth summer jobs initiative.
- Mr. Randall continues to have discussions with Ray Allen, Secretary, Wisconsin Department of Workforce Development, regarding workforce development initiatives including summer youth employment.
- Mr. Randall participated in an external community meeting organized by UWM concerning the Call Me Mister site visit.
- Discussions and planning continued with the National Science Foundation program officer and amongst internal partners concerning the potential bioscience initiative.
- Mr. Randall met with Laura Bray, Executive Director at MATC Foundation, and Cheralyn Randall, Associate Vice President - Economic & Workforce Development & Grants at MATC, concerning his latest discussions with the Jack Kent Cooke Foundation regarding the potential grant opportunity for funding of a special scholarship initiative with local PK-16 partners.
- The liaison for the Upper Midwest Region of the Campaign for Grade-Level Reading conducted a conference call with regional participants. The meeting agenda included Campaign updates, summer learning updates, and community updates on school readiness, attendance, parents, health, technology, and public housing. Issues for future meetings were also shared.

- Senator Lena Taylor’s office hosted a meeting to gather input on planning a college fair. Bi-weekly planning meetings will continue for hosting a college fair this year that will include Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCU). Mr. Randall, a representative from MPS, and others are on the planning team.
- The fourth Annual MEP HBCU Conference was held April 24-26, 2017 at the InterContinental Milwaukee Hotel. There was a significant increase in HBCU participation—29 senior representatives from 28 HBCU institutions, some repeat participants and many new participants. HBCU participants included chancellors/presidents, deans, recruitment personnel, and other administration and education leaders. In addition to the focus on the area of education, this year’s conference included two new tracks of focus—engineering and health care.
  - Education Track - Most HBCU Work Group co-chairs were present to lead further work and discussion on the efforts of the six education work groups that are an active result of the HBCU conferences over the last several years and are addressing the MPS student support pipeline, professional educator pipeline for HBCU graduates, professional development programs for MPS educators, faculty collaborations between HBCU and Milwaukee institutions, professional development opportunities for HBCU students, and a program directory. During the education work group sessions, progress was reviewed, discussion/planning took place on next steps, and recommendations were brought forth for consideration and future action. There were many good ideas and HBCU programs and collaborations discussed that could potentially develop in future work. Participants also toured several MPS schools (Riverside, Milwaukee High School of the Arts, Reagan, and Bradley Tech), which included room visits, information-sharing, meeting with staff and students and even live videoconferences with HBCU institutions unable to attend the conference.
  - Engineering Track – HBCU engineering conference participants were given a tour of the UWM College of Engineering & Applied Science, including several of the labs, a program overview and presentation, led by Dr. Brett Peters, Dean, and other engineering program leaders. A tour of the Global Water Center was also given. Breakout sessions were held where MEP goals were presented and discussed, such as creating pipelines and research collaborations. Student preparedness in mathematics, teaching best practices, teaching collaborations and many other great ideas and potential collaborations were discussed. Lunches were also provided by tour hosts.
  - Health Care Track – HBCU health care conference participants were given a tour and presentation overview of the Medical College of Wisconsin (MCW) led by Dr. John Raymond, President, and other MCW staff. Participants also had a tour of Columbia-St. Mary’s Hospital and an overview of the Ascension Columbia College of Nursing, led by Reggie Newson, VP of Gov’t. Relations-Chief Advocacy Officer, Ascension WI and other senior Ascension WI staff. Discussion was held on nursing workforce needs and opportunities as well as areas of potential collaboration including clinical opportunities, faculty exchange and information-sharing opportunities, and workforce opportunities. Lunches were also provided by tour hosts.

Other activities for all conference participants included:

- Meeting with MPS Superintendent Dr. Darienne Driver and members of her senior team and a presentation, “Pathways to Diversity,” shared by Dr. Tonya Adair, MPS Chief Innovation & Information Officer. The presentation included:
    - MPS and City of Milwaukee demographics.
    - MPS staff and student diversity data.
    - Barriers to recruiting and hiring teachers.
    - New educator instruction and supports.
    - Efforts to build the teacher pipeline.
