- The MEP helped to support the Summit on Black Male Youth-Milwaukee (African-American Males Initiative, AKA Saving Black Boys) and the Brothers Connecting with Young Brothers Mentoring Program. The summit was organized by UWM and held on campus in mid-December. At this annual summit, approximately 500 black middle and high school males participate in a number of workshops intended to motivate, inspire, and offer words of wisdom, along with the possibility of becoming successful leaders not only in the classroom but also in the community. They are shown a life possible beyond their neighborhoods and encouraged to consider career opportunities in education, the arts and vocational fields through workshops, forums and talk-back sessions. The summit is also a positive mechanism for introducing to these boys role models who are outstanding leaders from various corporations and community organizations in Milwaukee.
